The CIMR symposium will provide sponsors with a unique opportunity to interact with regional, national, and international leaders, as well as researchers, scientists, teachers, and practitioners, from the public and private sectors. By becoming a sponsor, your organization will:

- Enhance its prominence as a leader in supporting climate services for agriculture and natural resources
- Increase awareness of your organization's products and services
- Gain greater visibility in the agricultural and natural resource arena
- Network with colleagues who make decisions in agriculture and natural resource management
- Learn about the results from the latest climate studies
- Explore future directions and opportunities for use of climate information in product and service solutions for agriculture and natural resources
- Have an opportunity to become a partner in future research and climate product development
