Mario Yanez, is Founding Director of Earth Learning that is dedicated to growing a life-sustaining culture in his home bioregion. Mario teaches interdisciplinary courses, leads public workshops, delivers professional development training, and produces public ecological learning events. He has several decades of non-profit and financial management, as well as systems experience, and is an accomplished grant-writer. He combines his vision of the necessary transition toward an ecologically sustainable world with a passion to bring about a resilient and healthy Greater Everglades bioregion. Mario is a community connector, a local organic farmer, and food activist. As a Certified Permaculture Designer, he is applying permaculture (permanent culture) design principles at various scales, implementing food forestry projects and leading the comprehensive and participatory design process of our local food system.

Will Sheftall is Extension Agent IV for Natural Resource Management in Leon County, FL. He has been a University of Florida/IFAS Extension faculty member for 27 years. Will earned an M.S. in botany from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. His current teaching focuses on interconnections between climate, energy, water and food, and practices that increase environmental, social and economic resilience. In 2012, Will initiated the first Permaculture Design Certificate course taught in Tallahassee, and the first offered by Cooperative Extension in Florida. The second class graduated in June 2013. Local practitioners and UF colleagues/practitioners assist with course instruction.
